MORE DELEGATES AGREE TO YIELD TO BRIDGE PETITIONERS

Owen, Klose and Monahan Say They'd Accept 30,000 Signatures as a Demand

BOND OPINION IS AWAITED

Citizens' Committee Ready to Go to Work When Baird Gets Dillon's Word.

Three more members of the House of Delegates who have been supporting the $4,000,000 Alton & Mississippi free bridge approach scheme, in interviews with a Post-Dispatch reporter Friday, signified their willingness to vote to submit the $2,500,000 Reber approach bond issue if the Citizens' Committee representing 40,000 members presented either mandatory initiative petitions or informal petitions signed by 30,000 to 40,000 voters requesting favorable action on the Reber approach bill.

These delegates are Edward A. Monahan of the Twentieth Ward, John E. Klose of the First Ward and Dr. Robert Emmett Owen of the Fifteenth Ward. In interviews published in the Post-Dispatch Thursday Delegates Andrew Scully, member of the Joint Conference Committee of the Council and House of Delegates, and Edward Deffau of the Seventh Ward declared that if the people demanded, through petitions, the passage of the Reber approach bond issue bill they would vote to submit it.

Would Accept Popular Demand. The attitude of the Delegates who have strongly supported the Alton & Mississippi $4,000,000 bond issue proposition to build the 21-mile approach and toll line indicated it was their belief that the House of Delegates would recognize the petitions as an imperative demand from the people for action on the Reber approach bill.

The Citizens' Committee, representing 75 business, civic and ward organizations, is holding itself in readiness to proceed with the work of getting signatures to petitions as soon as City Counselor Baird, now in New York, reports on the validity of the initiative plan.

Baird is conferring with the law firm of Dillon, Thomson & Clay, whose expert opinion on bond issues is accepted as final by the banking and brokerage houses through which bonds are sold to the public. If the opinion should be favorable to the initiative plan, the Citizens' Committee will proceed immediately to get the 30,000 signatures required to force the Reber approach bond issue to a vote of the people.

If the initiative plan should be held to be invalid, the committee will proceed to get 40,000 signatures to petitions requesting the Municipal Assembly to pass the Reber approach bill.

The petitions will be a direct appeal to the people from the stand taken by the House of Delegates in favor of the Alton & Mississippi scheme and against the Reber approach plan. The Citizens' Committee amendment to the City Charter of the Municipal Assembly could hold up the ordinance accompanying the petitions for 40 days, and then submit the ordinance to a vote of the people.

Council for Reber Approach. The Council already has voted to submit the Reber approach bond issue, and would reiterate its stand, if necessary, by immediately passing the ordinance accompanying the petitions. A majority of the members of the Council favor the Reber approach, and Dr. Paul R. Fletcher, chairman, and Dr. Edward Randall, member of the Joint Conference Committee, both Alton & Mississippi supporters, said they would yield to the demand of the voters and join with the other Councilmen in submitting the Reber approach bond issue.

The views of the three members of the House of Delegates interviewed by the Post-Dispatch Friday are: Dr. Robert Emmett Owen, Delegate from the Fifteenth Ward: "As a citizen, I should like to be the first to sign the initiative petition. As a member of the House of Delegates, I will not declare now what I shall do on the petitions are presented to the Municipal Assembly. If it should be that I consider a proper petition, I should have my earnest consideration."

Taft Is Guest of the President at Luncheon

Former President Then Argues Before Congressmen in Favor of Bill Prescribing Reform in the Federal Courts.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Former President Taft appeared today before the House Judiciary Committee in the capacity of president of the American Bar Association, and with several other members of the association advocated passage of the Clayton bill to authorize the Supreme Court to prescribe forms and rules of procedure for Federal Courts on the common law side. The former President spoke after taking luncheon at the White House with President Wilson. It was the first time since the Harrison administration that a President and his predecessor had luncheoned together.

All men delight in the exercise of patronage," said Taft. "Of course," he added, with a broad smile, "on this matter I am speaking to the Republicans on your committee, not the Democrats."

The daily brought a ripple of laughter. One of the troubles with life appointments for Judges, said Taft, was that the temptation was strong to build up about themselves "judicial families."

Wanted—One large, husky citizen of St. Louis to play the part of the Mississippi River.

Joseph Lindon Smith, stage director of the masque of St. Louis, which is to be given as the symbolic after-piece of the masque, in Forest Park, May 1st, is looking for a big man, with big limbs, big voice and good stage presence, to represent the Mississippi River in the masque.

"I don't mind if he is pot-bellied," said Smith, "but he must have the necessary qualifications to a Post-Dispatch reporter Friday. "We can cover that up. But he must be big in every way. He must have a voice that will carry his words over the hillside, and he must not be afraid to let his voice out. The part of the Father of Waters is one that is not in danger of being overacted, and we wish to put a strong man in the part, giving him the general idea and then let him turn himself loose."

Applicants who do not quite qualify for the Mississippi part, but who are reasonably big, will be chosen for the parts of the Mississippi's tributary rivers, the Missouri, the Ohio, the Illinois and the Arkansas. The River des Peres is not included in the list, but if Parkview residents should demand that it be represented, some small, unkempt and boisterous person would probably be placed in the role. The Mississippi will have only a speaking part, but the tributarities will have to sing.

The figure of the Mississippi, as represented in the preliminary drawing which Smith brought, on his arrival here Thursday, is to have some resemblance to the Veiled Prophet. He will wear a beard and will have not only a veil but a mantle 40 feet long that will make the devotees of fashion gasp.

Other symbolical figures in the masque, for which men of strong build are needed, are those of Gold, Silver, Iron, Lead and Coal. Whether Coal will be shown in the act of paying 20 cents a ton bridge toll is a detail which has not been announced.

LUMBAGO; RUB IT

Rub away Pain, Soreness, Stiffness, Sciatica, with St. Jacobs Oil.

Back hurt you? Can't straighten up without feeling sudden pains, sharp aches and twinges? Now listen! That's lumbago, sciatica or maybe from a strain, and you'll get blessed relief the moment you rub your back with soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Oil." Nothing else takes out soreness, lameness and stiffness so quickly. You simply rub it on and out comes the pain. It is perfectly harmless and doesn't burn or discolor the skin.

Limb up! Don't suffer! Get a small trial bottle from any drug store, and after using it just once, you'll forget that you ever had backache, lumbago or sciatica, because your back will never hurt or cause any more misery. It never disappoints and has been recommended for 60 years.—ADV.

MICHAEL J. WHALEN.

26TH WARD GAVE
THREE MAJORITIES
FOR REBER PLAN

Representative Constituents of Whalen Can't Understand His Support of A. & M.

The Twenty-sixth Ward is represented in the House of Delegates by Michael J. Whalen of 4872 St. Louis avenue, a commission merchant at 1100 North Third street.

Whalen is one of the 12 Democratic members of the House combine of 22 which has obstructed completion of the free bridge by refusing to submit to a vote a bond issue for $2,700,000 to build the Reber approach, and has supported the A. & M. approach, grab.

Once the ward gave a two-thirds vote and another time the favorable vote lacked only 48 votes of being two-thirds.

In 1911 the Twenty-sixth Ward cast 1136 votes for bonds for the Reber approach and only 536 against them, the favorable vote being more than two-thirds. At the special election in August, 1912, the vote was 1498 for the bonds and only 759 against them, almost two-thirds of the voters favoring the bonds. In November, 1912, there were 1921 votes for the bonds and 1804 against them.

World Open Vast Territory. Jacob F. Hellrung of 687 Lotus avenue, president of the Hellrung & Grimm House Furnishing Co., believes in the building of the Reber approach. He said:

"If a man in business is perhaps the only one who really knows what the completion of the bridge means to St. Louis. It means much more than forcing a removal of the arbitrary, although that will be one great advantage. To the retail stores it means the opening up of a vast trade territory and the spending of many more thousands of dollars each month in St. Louis."

"The Reber approach is the only logical approach, and it is the approach which must be built. It looks very much like the House of Delegates is not going to let the people vote on bonds for this approach, and I sincerely hope that the opinion of the bond expert in New York will be that the initiative is legal. It is to be regretted that St. Louis has a House of Delegates so constituted that the people cannot leave the affairs of the city in its hands, but when it has shown itself unfaithful to the interests of the city, we must ignore it and go ahead for the advancement of St. Louis."

See No Merit in A. & M. Louis C. Benson of 6247 E. boulevard, manager of the H. & L. Chase Bag Co., 18 North Main street, believes the Reber approach should be built.

"I do not see how anybody could be for any approach except the Reber approach. I cannot see that there is any merit in the A. & M. proposition and do not believe that it could obtain even a majority of the votes of the people, much less a two-thirds vote."

B. Riley Hawk of 426 Garfield avenue, president of the B. Riley Hawk Supply Co., 115 South Main street, said: "You can put me down as for the Reber approach. I believe it to be the proper approach, and believe the A. & M. proposition to be foolish. I am satisfied that the people are now thoroughly aroused to the necessity of immediately completing the Reber approach and that if given an opportunity will vote the bonds for the approach. I do not think that the A. & M. plan has been seriously considered by anybody aside from its promoters and the members of the House of Delegates."

John M. Tully, Democratic Committeeman from the Twenty-sixth Ward, recently told a Post-Dispatch reporter that he favored the completion of the bridge, and that he believed a bond issue would carry in his ward.

A burglar who entered the private garage of J. C. Van Riper, president of the American Trust Co., of 5857 Waterman avenue, Wednesday night, and stole an automobile horn and inner tubes valued at $200, might have gone undetected, but Special Officer James Hurley, searching the garage, found a chauffeur's badge. Hurley found Kehoe at Beaumont and Lucas avenue and arrested him. A woman's watch was found on Kehoe, and when he was told he would be charged with stealing it, he confessed he got the watch and $5 from another chauffeur for the horn which he had taken from the garage.

Proper diet, fresh air and temperate habits are beneficial to persons suffering from Lung Trouble, but in a great many instances reports show that the addition of a medicine for this affection has materially helped in bringing about recovery. For more than fifteen years Eckman's Alterative has accomplished good results. Read what it did in this case:

"Gentlemen: In December, 1908, March, 1910, and December, 1911, I was afflicted with hemorrhages of the lungs, which confined me several weeks each time. My bed was my only refuge. In November I started for Denver, Colo., after my arrival I met Michael Brody, who upon learning of my condition, urged me to take Eckman's Alterative. I kept on taking the medicine and improved fast. In March, 1912, I returned home, an entirely well man, and my appetite and sleep were restored. When I left Denver my weight was 115 pounds. I now weigh 145. My normal weight. I thank God and your Alterative for my health."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—That the American government regards the hanging of Clemente Vergara, an American citizen near Hidalgo, Mex., as a subject for reparation by the Huerta Government, became known after today's cabinet meeting.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Consul Letcher telegraphed Secretary Bryan today that Villa would permit two Americans, two British representatives and two members of the family of William S. Benton to view the body of Benton, the British subject executed by Villa.

Consul Letcher also reported that Gen. Villa would permit two physicians to accompany the American and British representatives and members of the Benton family and that he would furnish transportation and accommodation for all of them.

Secretary Bryan said just before entering a cabinet meeting that Consul Letcher's dispatches also confirmed previous information that Benton's body was in Chihuahua City.

He said arrangements would be made soon for the visit of the commission to Chihuahua to view the corpse and intimated that the disposition of the body would be settled after the medical examination.

Huerta Asks That Raising of Arms Embargo Be Reconsidered.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—After a long lapse in the diplomatic exchanges between Washington and the City of Mexico, an attempt has been made to reopen the correspondence by the submission of an appeal by the Huerta government for the reconsideration by the United States of the recent raising of the embargo on arms to Mexico.

The feature of the Mexican communication said to have been issued at Mexico City last night is the allegation that a state of anarchy now exists in as much of Mexico as is occupied by the rebel forces, and it is also charged that the immediate effect of the decree permitting the exportation of arms has been to place the rebels in a favorable situation for permitting outrages, while preventing the Huerta government from repressing them as quickly and as energetically as it desires.

On the other hand, it is set out that wherever the Huerta government is in

NATURE STILL "CASTS OUT DEVILS"

Through the 5,000,000 Pores of Your Body and Through the Bowels, Liver and Kidneys.

If you don't think they're REAL Devils, just let them accumulate, as in constipation and biliousness, as a whole brood of demons appear, such as indigestion, flatulence, heartburns, palpitation, dizziness, jaundice, congestion of the liver. Later these grow into Bright's Disease, Typhoid, Malaria, etc.

Winter's a fine time for these Devils to get in their work, because the pores are not open, and what you sweat out in summer must be strained off by the liver in winter—and the liver dams or clogs with Bile.

PODOLAX RELEASES THE BILE. There's one thing these devils can't stand and that is Bile. Bile is Nature's great cleanser and disinfectant. When it's dammed up, all the above troubles appear. Release it and they disappear like mist before the rising sun. That's why salts, mineral waters, oil and common laxatives fail. They don't release the Bile, but merely flush the intestines.

Podophyllin (common Mandrake or May Apple Root) is Nature's own gift to mankind. Since the days of the patriarchs it has proven the one harmless and certain cure for constipation, because it releases the dammed up Bile. (See Encyclopedia Britannica).

Podolax is a Podophyllin formula made pleasant in taste and action, and is for the whole family, children especially. You can reason. You know that a free flow of Bile insures a healthy body. You know that no food would be fit for blood food without the Bile to purify it. We insist that Podolax will start the Bile flowing. It is done gently without griping, without sickening, and we guarantee it.

New Yorker's Prize-Winning Pageant Program Cover Design

THE WINNER. Fifty-Dollar Second Award Goes to Miss Amy Isaacs, New Yorker Wins $100.

Charles N. Sarkis of 151 East Twenty-first street, New York, won first honor in the competition for a cover design for the St. Louis Pageant program. Technically, the first prize of $100 was not awarded to him, as his design did not conform, in size, to the specifications. The committee, instead, took the design for $15, as the rules permitted it to do, and then awarded the artist $85 additional for good work.

Second prize, $50, was won by Miss Amy Isaacs of 427 Washington boulevard. Nine competitors received honorable mention, two of them being Mildred L. Bailey of 578 McPherson avenue and Margaret E. Barnes, Grand and Lindell boulevards.

power, full protection has been given to nationals and foreigners. Therefore, the United States is invited to reflect seriously "upon the sad consequences" that arising of rebels will bring, in the opinion of the Huerta government.

It is not expected that the State Department will return any formal answer to this last communication.

Charge Alcala, at the American Embassy, was notified today that the Huerta government had delivered such a communication to American representatives and diplomatic representatives of other powers in Mexico City. He did not receive a copy of it.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—That the American government regards the hanging of Clemente Vergara, an American citizen, near Hidalgo, Mexico, as a subject for reparation by the Huerta Government, became known after today's cabinet meeting. The cabinet discussed practically nothing else but Mexican affairs.

While the Benton incident was discussed in great detail, members of the cabinet particularly were concerned over the hanging of Vergara. That act, they believed, had shocked the American people and should not go unpunished. Steps will be taken to impress the Huerta Government of the feeling of the United States in the matter, particularly after repeated assurances had been given by the Huerta government that Vergara would not be harmed.

So far as could be learned, the cabinet was not inclined to condone the killing of Benton, but, in discussing responsibility for the act, some members were inclined to think Benton at least was indiscreet in going into the camp of a military commander, with whom he was not on friendly terms, and entering into an argument with him.

English Consul Goes to El Paso to Aid in Benton Inquiry. EL PASO, Tex., Feb. 27.—George C. Carothers, who was to have investigated the death of Benton, today postponed his departure for Chihuahua and, while he was silent as to his reasons, it is assumed that the arrival here of the British emissary, Charles Arthur Percival, to participate in the Benton investigation, accounts for the delay. Percival came here from Galveston, where he is British Consul.

Gen. Hugh L. Scott, Carothers and Percival maintained complete reserve as to their plans. Percival, who received a bulky packet which he said contained his instructions, is expected to be guided by Gen. Scott in his official actions.

EDITORS FINED FOR NOT TELLING SOURCE OF NEWS

New York Tribune's City Editor and Reporter Assessed $500 in Smuggling Case.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—George Burdick, city editor and William Curtin, ship news reporter for the New York Tribune were adjudged in contempt by Federal Judge Hand today for having refused recently to answer questions concerning their source of information relative to smuggling cases, accounts of which their paper printed.

Each was fined $500, but the Court said the defendants would have opportunity to purge themselves should they desire to answer the questions before another grand jury.

The attempt to force Burdick and Curtin to testify was made after the publication of information concerning the Alexander-Helmeyer and Littauer Brothers smuggling cases.

When the Alexander-Helmeyer case was published, United States Attorney Snowden Marshall started an investigation. There was no question as to the accuracy of the publication, but Marshall wanted to know where the "leak" was.

Burdick and Curtin were called before the Federal grand jury and questioned. It was explained to them that the only object of the inquiry was to enable the Federal authorities to ascertain who in the customs or other branches of the services had furnished the information. Burdick and Curtin declined to testify.

In order to collect the information out of them, however, the United States Attorney had communicated with Washington, and had obtained pardons in advance for the newspaper men signed by President Wilson, which pardons would have protected them from all liability to punishment. They refused on the constitutional ground that to answer questions by the grand jury might tend to incriminate or degrade them.

The pardons signed by the President overcame that point, but Burdick and Curtin, by advice of their counsel, former United States Attorney Henry A. Wise, continued to keep silent when an effort was made to get them to tell how the information was obtained.

Assistant District Attorney Frank R. Carstarphen told Judge Hand that the Federal grand jury prepared informal presentments against Burdick and Curtin, on the ground that they were not acting in good faith in asserting their constitutional right, but were, in fact, merely trying to shield some Government official from whom the information had been obtained.

MRS. MALDWIN DRUMMOND MUST PAY ENGLISH TAX

LONDON, Feb. 27.—The Court of Appeals today decided that Mrs. Maldwin Drummond, formerly Mrs. Marshall Field Jr., is liable for the payment of income tax in England on money remitted to her from the United States under the provisions of the will of her late husband for the education of her three children.

The suit was brought by the British Collector of Taxes in reference to $50,000 remitted to Mrs. Drummond in 1908, but the effect of the judgment is to make her liable for the payment of income tax on all sums remitted to her under the will of Marshall Field Jr.

HUMANE SOCIETY PRESIDENT'S HOME ROBBED 3RD TIME

Mrs. John H. Holmes' Jewelry Stolen on First Visit and Part Returned Second Time.

Thieves, after having twice within six weeks entered the home of John H. Holmes, 537 Maple avenue, once to steal jewelry and the second time to return part of it, and who have been threatening members of the household by telephone and letters, made a third visit Thursday and carried away a sumburst of 21 diamonds belonging to Miss Ella H. Pabst, who makes her home with Mr. and Mrs. Holmes.

The house was entered with a skeleton key, or a duplicate key, in spite of four detectives who have been working on the case, with instructions to clear the mystery.

Holmes is president of the Missouri Humane Society and a high official of the Knights of Pythias. Miss Pabst who lives with Mr. and Mrs. Holmes, was engaged to their son when he died two years ago.

The house was entered the first time on Jan. 14. Jewelry valued at $1000 was taken. During the following three weeks four anonymous notes were received at the Holmes residence and Mrs. Holmes reported to the police that on Feb. 6 a man telephoned to her that "they" had been in the house the night before, had sampled her baked apples and had returned a $200 la valiere, stolen on the former visit, which would be found in Mrs. Holmes' dresser drawer. He also threatened to "blow her head off" if she did not stop talking to detectives. The la valiere was found.

The next day Miss Pabst was called to the telephone and was told that she would find her diamond necklace, stolen on Jan. 14, hidden in the drawer of her dresser. It was found there.

Thursday, between 12:30 and 2:30 o'clock, while Mr. and Mrs. Holmes and Miss Pabst were away from the house, it was entered again and the sunburst was stolen.

Holmes believes a person or persons whose enmity he has incurred are taking this method of annoying him.

11 KILLED, 13 HURT IN JAIL BREAK BY ECUADOR CONVICTS

Four Wardens and Guards Murdered by Prisoners, Seven of Whom Are Shot Down.

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, Feb. 27.—Eleven men were killed and 13 wounded in a sharp fight today between Government troops and prisoners attempting to escape from the penitentiary. The convicts killed their wardens and dashed for the gates, cheering for Col. Carlos Concha, the rebel commander at Esmeraldas. Troops were called from barracks in the vicinity and re-established order after a brief struggle, in which seven prisoners were killed and six wounded. The others killed or wounded were wardens and guards.

Alfredo Baquerizo Moreno, President of the Senate, is acting executive during the absence of President Plaza, who was expected to reach Esmeraldas today to lay siege to the rebel forces there.

DEBS IN ST. LOUIS CALLS FORD 'PLAN OF GIVING MISTAKE'

Eugene V. Debs, the four-time standard-bearer of the national Socialist party, came to St. Louis Thursday to talk politics with St. Louis Socialists and to lay plans for the 1914 congressional campaign. He delivered an address Thursday evening at Fraternal Union Hall, Victor street and Gravois avenue, the first of a series to be delivered through Oklahoma, Texas and Louisiana.

In an interview Friday with a Post-Dispatch reporter, Debs paid his respects to the big political parties in the United States. He said: "Either the capitalist or working class must rule, declared Debs, and the Progressive party attempts to straddle both, while serving neither. It has taken enough from the Socialist platform to appeal to the great masses not yet ready for Socialism."

Socialist vote gratifying. The 1912 Socialist vote for President was a gratifying one, Debs said, in that it reached 900,000, more than double the previous vote. Had it not been for the Progressive vote, it would have reached 2,000,000, he believes.

The realignment of the two dominant parties is under way, he declared. There will be an amalgamation of the conservative, the capitalist forces, although the form is a matter of conjecture. He described Mark Hanna as a clear-eyed prophet, when he predicted 10 years ago that conditions were shaping themselves for a gigantic class struggle.

Taft's recent published statements indicate he is still standing pat, said Debs, who believes there is very little difference between the Democratic and Progressive platforms, and who describes the income tax and the lowered tariff as alive, in that they attempt to ameliorate conditions, but haven't changed the conditions of the working man. He said:

"There are more idle men in the country today than in 10 years. To what extent the tariff is responsible is a question. I think the tariff as affecting labor is about 80 per cent. harmful. The tariff has favored a few manufacturers. Some say the tariff is to prevent our workers from competing with the cheap European labor. It may have prevented the competition, but it has not kept out the European laborer."

Discusses price of labor. "Suppose the income tax and the lowered tariff do reduce the high cost of living. What is the result? Wages are reduced. The price of labor is fixed at the point of subsistence. The American laborer is allowed to live and raise his family to succeed him."

Debs then plunged into a discussion of the internationalistic movement, which, he said, would result in a "worldwide oligarchy of capital." To combat this, he declared, there was an international labor movement, which would eventually, when the titanic struggle of classes is fought, result in an industrial democracy, which would mean the socialization of the ownership of all production, with interest, profit and rent—the three forms of taxation of production, done away with.

Speaking of the $100,000,000 distribution of Henry Ford to the employees of the Ford Motor Co., Debs declared: "I think Mr. Ford a large-hearted, benevolent-natured man, whose sympathies are more for the working man than any wealthy man this country has produced. But his plan is not going to meet with general approval, nor will it have any considerable effect on the general situation. Here is the chief objection: It's a mistake to GIVE working men anything. If what Mr. Ford has given them belongs to them, it ought not to have been taken from them in the first place."

"If it is not rightly theirs, it is wrong for them to receive it in the form of a charitable gift, which stultifies their manhood and makes them subservient receivers of alms."

Bitter at Moyer treatment. Debs was particularly bitter over the treatment of Charles Moyer in the Michigan copper strike. He described Moyer as a gentle, mild-mannered man, who was attacked, slugged, shot in the back and deported, and then indicted. "I'd rather be tried by a jury of convicts than one of the clerks and servants of the overlords," he declared.

Debs went into an explanation of the ramifications of the capitalist influence. He said that Rockefeller, using the name Generalissimo, controlled the Governors of Colorado and Michigan, as evidenced in recent labor troubles.

Debs is accompanied by his brother, Theodore Debs. The Socialist leader is the picture of health. He is 58 years old.

WRIGHT IS SURE CURTISS AIRSHIP CAN'T CROSS SEA

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 27.—Orville Wright doesn't believe the Henson-Wanamaker transatlantic flyer ever will cross the Atlantic. Furthermore, he says, Glenn H. Curtiss knows the flying boat he is building for the Wanamaker over-ocean trip will not make the journey.

Mr. Wright stopped in New York on his way to Washington and talked freely for publication. The final decision of the Wright patent case, giving the Wrights the exclusive control of all airships, or wing warping, essential details of all successful aeroplanes, has taken a great load off the inventor's mind.

Now those who have given him trouble through years of litigation will have to pay dearly. The Wright company not only will demand royalties of about $1000 on each aeroplane manufactured, but infringing companies will be obliged to pay royalties on every machine they have turned out, in order to continue their business.

Notices to infringers are now being sent out from the New York office, 11 Pine street. Mr. Wright told the history of his experiments since the first flight of the Wright aeroplane was made at Kitty Hawk, N. C., on Dec. 17, 1903. He spoke harshly of Glenn H. Curtiss, who was a defendant in the recent suit.

"Could you build a machine that would fly across the Atlantic?" was a question put to Mr. Wright.

Mr. Wright smiled sadly and shook his head at the question.

"No," he said, "I could not. Neither can Mr. Curtiss or anyone else, for that matter."

ST. LOUIS TOO BIG FOR CITY MANAGER, DAYTON MAN SAYS

H. M. Waite Tells B. M. L. Too Many Officials Govern City; Responsibility Scattered.

The city manager form of government could not at this time be considered for a city the size of St. Louis, according to H. M. Waite, who holds the distinction of being the city manager of Dayton, O., the first city in the country to try out the new method. Waite arrived in St. Louis Friday morning. He spoke at noon before the Business Men's League at the Mercantile Club, and in the evening is to be the guest of honor of the Engineer's Club of St. Louis at a dinner in the City Club.

"When you ask the people of a city to change their form of government, you must first educate them up to the new form which you wish to introduce," he said. "I also think that the city manager plan should be worked out in a number of smaller cities first, to thoroughly test it under all conditions, and work out problems which might arise later on in a larger city."

St. Louis Citizens Handicapped. When the St. Louis system of municipal government was explained to Waite, he said:

"Your citizens seem to be rather handicapped by not having the responsibility resting on a few men, instead of a large number. However, no form of government is worth anything unless the citizens take an active interest in it. With the responsibility on a few people, and the citizens really interested, you make progress. In Dayton we elect five commissioners. This commission appoints the city manager. The city manager appoints five directors, namely, police, fire, health, finance, and law. These men, as well as myself, are directly responsible for the city, and we are subject to recall. "We run the city just as you would run a private business. The petty graft, the ward heeler, the political boss, is done away with."

HABERMAN ARGUES FOR A. & M. PLAN

East St. Louis electric near Forrest boulevard. The crossings over the B. & O. and Vandavia if they should lose the right before the Illinois Public Utilities Commission on such crossings.

If the roads win, these crossings would have to be made by a separation of grade.

Besides the street car and railroad crossings, this Denverside line crosses at grade the two important thoroughfares, Missouri and Illinois avenues, and numerous streets and alleys.

The crossings of both the Illinois Transfer and the Denverside road over State street at grade are a great danger. State street is the main artery of traffic, connecting East St. Louis with Belleville. It has street cars passing at frequent intervals.

It is only a question of time before East St. Louis will have to insist upon a separation of grades at both of these points. In order to procure the consent of the Railroad Commission to the several grade crossings on the Denverside road it was necessary to agree to an order requiring them to keep all trains before going over a grade crossing.

The report of the convention of the committees of the Railroad Commission of Illinois, Ohio, Indiana, Wisconsin and Michigan called the grade-crossing situation "The Great American Crime."

St. Louis is engaged in enforcing a separation of grades on the Missouri side. It should not locate its approach on the Illinois side so as to make grade crossings necessary in order to reach the approach, or to lay itself open to the necessity of reconstructing its entire approach. The Public Utilities Commission should subsequently order a separation of grade.

"One of the great traffic advantages of the Alton & Mississippi approach is that it has no grade crossings.

"Moving trains over an approach upon which there are no grade crossings will enable a high rate of speed to be maintained. Trains can be moved over the Alton & Mississippi approach at a high rate of speed. It will be a double-track system.

The topography of the route of the A. & M. approach is such that practically unlimited speed may be attained. Approaching East St. Louis, the down grade is six-tenths of 1 per cent, and heavy trains may thus be drawn at high speed. The momentum gained would go far toward negotiating the up-grade leading to the shore pier, thus traffic could be kept moving rapidly always and greatly increase the capacity of the bridge.

The Alton & Mississippi approach presents features of economy in taxation which do not exist in the other approach. The tax rate in East St. Louis is light and is increasing. The tax rate for 1913 is $1.31 per each $100 of equalized valuation. The equalized value upon which the assessment of taxes is made is one-third of the cash value.

"Therefore, if the City of St. Louis made an investment of some $2,000,000 in the Alton & Mississippi approach, the annual taxes would be approximately $40,000. The tax rate for the corresponding period in St. Clair County was less than half this sum.

"As the Alton & Mississippi approach is outside of the City of East St. Louis, 5000 feet from the shore pier, the taxation upon this approach would be very small compared to the annual taxes upon the Reber approach.

"The annual depreciation on the Reber approach would be material factor. The depreciation of this kind is estimated at 2 per cent a year. The Alton & Mississippi approach, all outside of East St. Louis, which is elevated, would require small maintenance expense, and becomes better as it grows older.

"The annual saving in cost to the city by reason of the smaller maintenance expense and the lesser depreciation of the Alton & Mississippi approach would be more than $25,000 a year. This, together with the difference in taxes, would amount to an annual saving to the City of St. Louis of more than $50,000.

"This saving would more than offset the interest paid because of the greater cost of the A. & M. approach of 21 miles, as compared with the original cost of the Reber approach, which is shorter.

"A table of comparative distances from points in Illinois to St. Louis shows that for the northern lines, the distance is somewhat greater over the Alton & Mississippi than over the Reber. With the southern lines, the reverse would be true. The average saving of time over the A. & M. would be from 20 to 25 minutes for passenger traffic, and a greater saving for freight.

"It is considered a good railroad to spend large sums of money for the purpose of saving short periods of time. The argument that the Reber approach, with the Associated Retailers' extension, would serve the purpose of taking the end of the approach to a point outside the limits of East St. Louis is fallacious. The growth of East St. Louis has been from the river front to the bluffs, doubling its population every 10 years.

"The Alton & Mississippi approach lies to the south of East St. Louis, in a direction in which it has not grown, and south of the barriers formed by the extensive railroad yards of the Illinois Central.

"An approach which would effectively destroy the arbitrary would be to the disadvantage of East St. Louis, as it would tend to check the establishment of industries on the East Side which might otherwise be located in St. Louis.

"The fact that the City of East St. Louis favors the Reber approach indicates that the city realizes that this approach will be ineffective to terminate the arbitrary.

"An argument has been made against the Alton & Mississippi project on the ground that adjacent lands would be enhanced in value. The enhancement in land value adjacent to the Reber approach would be many times such value as the enhancement in the vicinity of the Alton & Mississippi approach.

The City of St. Louis neither gains nor loses with reference to the land value. The increase or decrease in land values in Illinois. The city is demanded to know who would guarantee that the promises made by the A. & M. would be carried out.

Satisfactorily answer the question, Fred W. Block, Richard P. Brennan and Attorney John S. Hummer of Chicago appeared before the Conference Committee, then in session and announced to the committee, that they would carry out the provisions of any ordinance that was approved by Mr. Sherrill. They gave as reference the Continental Commercial Trust Company and Bank in Chicago or any other financial institution in the City of Chicago.

Kill the Catarrh Germ--Use Hyomei

It's the Direct-to-the Spot Method--You Breathe It.

Why delay and continue to needlessly suffer the ravages of catarrh germs? It is not only unnecessary, but dangerous. Try now--today--the Hyomei treatment for catarrh, head colds, or bronchial coughs.

The Hyomei process of destroying catarrh germs, relieving head colds and healing the raw and inflamed mucous membrane is not only most effective, but is quick, entirely harmless and pleasant to use--it's the natural way--you breathe it--no bad tasting drugs to upset the stomach.

You cannot successfully reach the organs where the catarrh germs thrive except with antiseptic and germicidal air. The common sense method is to breathe a few times daily health-restoring Hyomei. Being medicated air it goes right to the spot and immediately reaches all the diseased tissues. Its antiseptic healing begins at once.

If suffering from frequent colds, headaches, raising of mucus, spasmodic coughing, difficult breathing or that weak and run-down feeling, surely try Hyomei. All druggists sell it. Ask for the complete outfit, regular price, $1.00.—ADV.

Recent Reports Show, Most Sickness Comes From Stopped-Up, Weak, Inactive Kidneys

Recent Reports Show Hundreds Suffer With Kidney Troubles and Don't Know It.

There are scores of nervous, tired, run-down people throughout the country, suffering with pains in the back and sides, dizzy spells and weaknesses of the bladder, who fail to realize the seriousness of their troubles until such conditions as chronic rheumatism, bladder troubles, dropsy, diabetes or even Bright's disease result.

All this is due to weak, inactive kidneys. The kidneys are the filters of the blood, and no one can be well and healthy unless the kidneys work properly.

If you suffer with such symptoms, don't neglect yourself another day, and run the risk of serious complications. Secure an original package of the new discovery, Crozone, which costs but a trifle, and commence its use at once. When you have taken a few doses, you will be surprised how differently you will feel. Crozone overcomes the worst cases of kidney, bladder trouble, and rheumatism, because it removes the cause. It cleans out the kidneys, and makes them filter out all the poisonous waste matter and uric acid, that lodge in the joints and muscles, causing rheumatism; soothes and heals the bladder, and quickly relieves you of all your misery.

You will find Crozone different from all other remedies. There is nothing else on earth like it. It matters not how old you are or how long you have suffered, it is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results.

You can secure an original package of Crozone from the first-class druggist. All druggists are authorized to personally return the purchase price if it fails to give the desired results the very first time you use it.—ADV.

Approaching East St. Louis, the down grade is six-tenths of 1 per cent, and heavy trains may thus be drawn at high speed. The momentum gained would go far toward negotiating the up-grade leading to the shore pier, thus traffic could be kept moving rapidly always and greatly increase the capacity of the bridge.

The Alton & Mississippi approach presents features of economy in taxation which do not exist in the other approach. The tax rate in East St. Louis is light and is increasing. The tax rate for 1913 is $1.31 per each $100 of equalized valuation. The equalized value upon which the assessment of taxes is made is one-third of the cash value.

"Therefore, if the City of St. Louis made an investment of some $2,000,000 in the Alton & Mississippi approach, the annual taxes would be approximately $40,000. The tax rate for the corresponding period in St. Clair County was less than half this sum.

"As the Alton & Mississippi approach is outside of the City of East St. Louis, 5000 feet from the shore pier, the taxation upon this approach would be very small compared to the annual taxes upon the Reber approach.

"The annual depreciation on the Reber approach would be material factor. The depreciation of this kind is estimated at 2 per cent a year. The Alton & Mississippi approach, all outside of East St. Louis, which is elevated, would require small maintenance expense, and becomes better as it grows older.

"The annual saving in cost to the city by reason of the smaller maintenance expense and the lesser depreciation of the Alton & Mississippi approach would be more than $25,000 a year. This, together with the difference in taxes, would amount to an annual saving to the City of St. Louis of more than $50,000.

"This saving would more than offset the interest paid because of the greater cost of the A. & M. approach of 21 miles, as compared with the original cost of the Reber approach, which is shorter.

BROWNS DISPLAY IMPROVEMENT IN WORK ON BASES

Manager Rickey's Coaching Shows in First Contest With Cubs.

DOUBLE STEAL WORKS

Austin and Walker Get Away With Two Thefts in Game With Cubs.

From a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 27.—Rallying in the ninth inning, the Browns yesterday at Tampa scored two runs and had two men on the basepaths when the side was retired with the verdict against them, 2-2. A home run by Cy Williams, a Notre Dame recruit just breaking into a Chicago box score, gave the Cubs a two-run lead in the first frame and put Hank O'Day's gang safely in the lead. The enemy scored the winning run in the eighth off Stevens, the southpaw, of an error and a double. It was the game final of Rickey's men that appealed to the sharp. Although beaten from the top of the hill, the Browns kept fighting and threatened for a time to pull the game out in the last round. Pratt opened the ninth with a single. Covington duplicated and when Saler popped for a second, Pratt made third and Covington scored. Cy Williams then made a wild heave in returning the ball and Pratt and Covington scored.

Browns Miss a Chance.

The Browns lost the best chance of selling the game in the sixth inning. With the bases choked and one down, Pratt was put in to hit for Covington. Pratt hit a wicked liner straight at the pitcher, the hero of the day, who, armed to second, doubling Walker off the middle base.

In many ways the Browns outplayed their foes. Pepper Austin and Clarence Walker pulled a double steal in the sixth that was neat and precise. Gus Williams also swiped a base, giving the Browns three steals against none for the enemy.

Roy Mitchell pitched the first three rounds for the Browns and his services were just to the liking of the hard-swinging Cubs. Two runs in the first, three in the fourth, and the De Soto star, took command in the fourth and was more effective. Stevens is destined for a thorough trial with the Browns.

The second game of the Cub season will be played Friday afternoon at St. Petersburg. Rickey probably will start Pratt at second base in this game, while it is barely possible that Bert Shotton will show in center field, as Bert claims he's ready.

Owen Hedges won't reach the camp in time for the second series with the Cubs. Manager Rickey learned today. The Colonel is coming to St. Petersburg, before the big reception is tendered the world's tourists in New York March 7.

FEDS WILL NOT NAME PLAYERS AT MEETING

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—Federal League owners gathered here today for their meeting tomorrow. President Gilmore, who returned from Buffalo this morning, said that no complete roster of the league's ball players would be given out then, the owners having concluded to announce them under by team. Some of the teams still are negotiating with players whose names they wish in the roster, when it is published.

In this connection, President Wegman of the Chicago club hinted that he was averse to naming his players until he had met the world's tourists on their arrival at New York. The Federal League, who returned to the tourists, among them Speaker, Crawford, Wingo and Doohan, will not go unheeded.

Larry Schaffar, manager of the Buffalo Federal, and Will Bradley, who was to have been manager of Toronto, were among the early arrivals. Bradley signed to play for the league, and has not been assigned to any team.

BOXING BRIEFS.

Willie Ritchie, who meets Ad Wolgast for rounds at the Queensbury A. C. at Madison Square on March 12, left for Chicago today for Chicago, where he will finish his preparation for the contest. The club officials received Ritchie's signed articles of consent for the bout. The weight will be pounds at 8 p. m.

Williams, who knocked out Eddie Campbell, the bantam champion of California, at Fresno, Cal., recently, is now on his way westward. He left Los Angeles, Cal., and before starting said he hoped to induce Johnny Coulton of Chicago to sign up for a fight with him.

Failing to clinch a bout between Leach Cross and Johnny Dundee for March 9, Billy Gilmore, manager of the Garden A. C., has signed up Jim Coffey, the "Dublin Giant," and Battling Lavinsky to meet in the main event of the heavyweight show which will be staged on that night. The other contest which Gilmore is trying to arrange is between Fred "Hollor" Pritts of Brooklyn, champion of the navy, and Tom "Bear" McMahon of Pittsburgh. The Cross-Dundee bout was abandoned because the managers of the fighters couldn't agree on the splitting of the purse.

In a letter from Al Lippe, who is in Australia with Jack Smith, the American midweight, Al says the fighting game is all the rage there and that the shows draw from up to $20,000. Lippe states he has received Smith's letter and that he has accepted the invitation of his association for American entries.

U. S. Golfers Invited to Canada. NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—The Royal Canadian Golf Association has invited the American and British players to take part in the Canadian amateur championship at Ottawa during the week of June 23. It was a letter to John Field, Jr., secretary of the United States Golf Association, in which the invitation was extended.

British Champion Handed Genuine Beating by Duffy Welsh Knocked Down

New York Lightweight Shows Wonderful Speed and Accuracy, and Fights a Much Cleaner Battle Than Opponent—Welsh Strong at Infighting.

By Harry S. Sharpe.

Referee for the Future City A. C. and the Post-Dispatch's Boxing Authority. JIMMY DUFFY of Lockport, N. Y., boxing in masterful fashion, won from Freddie Welsh, England's lightweight champion, in the eight-round bout in which these two engaged last night before members of the National Athletic Club at the Coliseum.

This opinion was expressed by Referee Eddie Randall after the bout, although it had been agreed in advance by the boxers and club officials that he would not hand down a verdict. But even to casual, unprejudiced spectators it must have been apparent that the clever Lockport boxer was entitled to the decision.

Duffy showed ability and a flash of speed seldom equaled here. This, coupled with a natural advantage in height and reach, had the English champion guessing in every round, with the possible exception of the second, in the course of which, and in the early part, Welsh landed a stinging right-hand punch to the jaw and then closed in with some hard fighting to the body that put Duffy on the defensive. The Lockport boxer kept his senses, however, and resorted to some clever footwork in evading the Englishman's rushes, at the same time working some light uppercuts that worried Welsh and prevented the latter from inflicting serious damage.

It is a fact that this second round was the only one that went to Welsh by a clear margin. All the others either went to Duffy's credit or were close, with a majority of them clearly won by Duffy, due to superior boxing.

Welsh Strong at Infighting. For the first four rounds Welsh excelled at infighting and was aggressive, while Duffy was his master at long-range boxing. Then, beginning with the fifth round, Duffy held his own at infighting and used a short uppercut with telling effect as Welsh rushed in to fight at close range.

At this stage of the bout Duffy resorted to a system of blocking that was successful in stopping many blows aimed at his body that Welsh had been getting in earlier in the fight.

In the fifth round Duffy scored the only knockdown, shooting out a fast

It was hard fighting in every round and the boxers resorted to everything they knew in a boxing way and a clever exhibition. They shifted their hands from head to body and back again with surprising suddenness and were quick to take advantage of every opportunity.

No time was wasted in sparring for openings, the boxers finding them at every turn, and they kept constantly busy blocking and hitting in the struggle for an advantage. It was a bout that kept the spectators keyed to a pitch of excitement and the clever display of boxing was generally applauded. The boxers kept close together, seldom out of reach at any time, and shot in their punches with amazing speed and accuracy.

Duffy's judgment of distance was best and he seemed faster, especially with a straight left jab to the face that seldom missed. At swinging, too, he showed to advantage, greatly aided by his superior reach. In the third round he swung left and right hard to the face and before Welsh could recover his balance Duffy shot a hard straight left that sent the Englishman's head back with a jerk. It was clever work and won him a round of applause.

Welsh was very rough; he had to be because, as the bout reached the later rounds, it was apparent that his Thermometer Close to Freezing Point Prevents Team's Workout.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., Feb. 27.—Even the weather man's against the Cardinals.

Since they reached here Monday the proteges of Miller Huggins have been unable to get in any practice ticks because of the cold, doing most of their work in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, which is not the most desirable place in the world to condition a ball club. The mercury registered at 26 yesterday morning, but climbed to 56 by sundown and the predictions for today are "fair and warmer."

Arnold Hauser, the ailing young shortstop, worked out with the Cardinals yesterday and showed a little more spirit, although he probably will be sent home this week.

"THERE'S a Mate in This Big World for You," Gave her a diamond ring on credit at Lott's Bros. 24 N. 30th St.

Brook and Murphy Draw. CANTON, O., Feb. 27.—Eddie Murphy of Boston and Phil Brock of Cleveland fought 12 fast and furious rounds to a draw here last night before a big crowd.

The man battled like a demon and the tide of victory shifted from one side to the other all through the fight. Murphy started out to be the aggressor in the early rounds, but Brock began rushing him and most of the rounds ended with honors even. Both men were bleeding at the final gong.

Dave Smith, the Australian light-heavyweight, is a curious sort of a fighter. He's very fast, clever and game. He beats everyone he meets, with the single exception of McGorby, who has twice knocked Smith out in the first round. Right after being knocked out by McGorby, Smith turns around and tries some other good man in championship style. There must be something in this "Indians" thing, after all.

POLICE ARREST SELLER OF PHONY FIGHT TICKETS

Man Who Has 40 Tickets in His Possession Is Taken at Coliseum.

A man who gave his name as Walter Kelly, said to be a shoemaker, was arrested Thursday night at the Coliseum by Detective Sgt. Frank McKenna at the instance of Manager Frank Bishop of the National Athletic Club.

Kelly was accused of having sold two counterfeit tickets to C. W. Spellmeyer of 533 California avenue for $3 the pair. The tickets were refused at the gate. Spellmeyer pointed out the man who sold him the pastboards. Over fifty tickets were found in possession of Kelly when he was searched.

This is the first time the club has been able to make an arrest in connection with the phony ticket sale which has been in evidence before each performance at the Coliseum.

Harry Trendall and Leo Kelly were both introduced from the ring Thursday night, at the Coliseum, as prospective opponents of the winner. A more interesting match would be between Duffy and Britton, or Welsh and Britton.

At the suggestion of Announcer Biz Kinney, the crowd of 3500 or more persons stood up for one moment, as a tribute to the late Lacy Crawford.

Wangle Over Taping.

When Welsh and Duffy entered the ring for the feature go a half-hour delay ensued because of Duffy's objection to the heavy taping work by Welsh. And the latter removed some of it, but not enough to suit Duffy, and the latter's contention was borne out by spectators at the ringside to whom Welsh submitted his hands for inspection. It was then proposed that all taping be removed by both, and the men immediately consented. This is the first time here for a long while that a main event has been boxed without taping, based even for gloves.

Welsh Forfeits $100.

When the men were introduced it was announced they would box at catch weights notwithstanding it had been understood they were to weigh in at 135 pounds at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. There was a dispute in regard to what weight Welsh would weigh in at, and Welsh refused to weigh in at all, and is said to have forfeited $100 to Duffy for not doing so. Duffy claimed to be weighing 128 1/2 pounds, while Welsh looked to be about 135 or 140.

city had an easy time defeating Jim Davidson, an awkward-looking boxer who stood with right hand and right foot out, hitting from Denver, Colo. It was a rough-looking bout, with Davidson outclassed, and Referee Randall stopped it in the seventh round and sent Davidson to his corner when it was apparent he had no chance.

Pierce Mathews defeated Charley Nelson in a bout where neither boxer paid much attention to the rules, hitting whenever an opportunity afforded itself, most of the time when they were clinched. Mathews was best after the second round. Nelson faded away fast from then on and was fortunate to escape a knockout.

Pleanty of Rivalry for Johnson. From the way the heavyweight boxers of ability are coming up, there are half a dozen men who could give Johnson a fight within the next year. There's Gunboat Smith, of course, who ranks ahead of Moran, who is matched now. The Gunner has a decision over Moran. Then there's Dally, the giant from Jimmy Dine's famous stable. These men are in a hurry with Dally, as the six-and-a-half-foot scrapper will surely arrive in course of time. Another fellow who is likely to make a lot of trouble for the other title chasers is this Salter Fritts, a six-footer, fairly fast and clever, weighing 185 pounds and carrying a kick as hard as Gunboat Smith's. He hit Jack Hansen last week and knocked him from one side of the ring to the other—and off.

DR. MAWSON ALONE FOUGHT DEATH 30 DAYS IN ANTARCTIC

Story of Struggles Follow-

FOUND FOOD CACHE WHEN NEAR DEATH

Expedition Which Returns to Adelaide, Australia, Was Successful in Making
Many Important Land
Observations.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—The story of Dr. Douglas Mawson's Antarctic expedition, cabled by him from Adelaide, Australia, was published in this morning's Daily Mail. It includes his account of the tragic death, by accident, of his companion, Lieut. B. E. S. Ninnis of the Royal Fusiliers; of the death, virtually from starvation, of Dr. Xavier Mertz, expert Swiss ski runner, and of Dr. Mawson's own escapes from death, which he terms "miraculous." He was for 30 days alone in the Antarctic wilderness. Dr. Mawson arrived in the Australian port in the ship Aurora, commanded by Capt. Davis. The ship's arrival, he says, "successfully terminates my undertaking without further loss of life." The expedition set out from Hobart, Tasmania, in December, 1911. Its object was to survey the Antarctic coast line, and to investigate the possible resources of the region. Dr. Mawson reports that indications of large coal deposits were found.

The deaths of Ninnis and Mertz, and Mawson's isolation and half-breath escapes occurred on a sledging journey which the three undertook in December, 1912. "The object of the dash as far east as possible," Dr. Mawson says, "was to ascertain the nature of the land in that direction. We were assisted by two dogs in dragging a load of over 1500 pounds."

Trouble seemed at an end. "The morning of Dec. 14 found us in latitude 68 degrees 51 minutes south and longitude 151 degrees 35 minutes east, having covered a distance of 311 miles. The track had lain over plateau heights and crevassed glacial depressions, three of which were encountered aggregating 599 feet in ascent and as much in descent. All were in high spirits. All trouble seemed then at an end, as we had arrived on an unbroken plateau with a clear sweep of coast to the east, and it was intended to keep the track at a safe distance to the south of the crevassed coastal downfalls."

"Dec. 15 was a beautiful day. We were just reveling in it when calamity overtook us. Mertz, on his ski, as a trail breaker, was a quarter of a mile in advance of myself and the dog team. Close behind came Ninnis, with a select team of dogs dragging a sledges, on which were packed more vital necessities. This arrangement had been adopted because it was thought that if any was to suffer by crevasses it would be the first sledge."

"Believing we were outside the danger zone, I was greatly surprised to observe the faint outline of a crevasse crossing. Mertz had crossed without regarding it as specially dangerous. My team was on top of it before being aware of the fact, but I was not specially anxious, as I had already negotiated scores of them. However, as was the custom, I called back from the crevasse, to put Ninnis on his guard."

"Looking behind, soon after, what was my astonishment when nothing met my eye but the great expanse of snow ice. Where, then, were Ninnis and team? Then the possibilities of the ice dawned upon me. Hastening I came to the yawning abyss. My eyes became accustomed to the light from below an injured dog observed caught on a ledge presently began to moan. Some fragments were also observed at the spot, but no trace of our companions. They must have gone down to where we knew not, but certainly to instantaneous death. We called for hours without getting any answer. The dog ceased to moan, and an eerie stillness came from the depths."

Dead Left Without Food. "All the rope left was of no avail to reach the ledge, 150 feet below, where the remains of the dog and a few scraps might have been secured, any of which would have been of great value in the position in which Mertz and I were left. The remaining sledge had only one and a half week's of man's food and no food at all for the six wolfishly emaciated dogs. There was saved a square tent cover, and a frame was improvised by using a pair of skis and the theodolite case. Later on a broken spade was picked up at an old camp."

"We decided that by setting the dogs we would have food enough to reach the hut across the plateau. The sea ice was breaking up. Nine hours after the accident, I read the burial services and we started to return. "The food was apportioned on a mileage basis, but owing to delays caused by bad weather the ration was reduced. The dogs gave out daily, and soon none was left. There was no nutriment in their flesh and no marrow in their bones.

"Early the first week in January we arrived 100 miles from the hut. Our alimentary systems were affected by the short ration. Mertz was worse than I and very weak. The weather was abominable. Day after day there was dense falling and drifting snow. The cold struck home as it never does when one is in good condition. The stages of a few miles were covered with great difficulty."

"On Jan. 3 it became evident that my comrade's condition was worse than my own. Even the best food we had did not have the effect expected. Mertz was very cheerful and I could not have wished for a better companion. The same applied to Ninnis. Both were fine characters."

"The weather became a little clearer on Jan. 6, but owing to the slippery surface falls were continuous. It soon became evident that Mertz could not proceed on foot. With him on board the sledges, even with the help of a sail, progress was slow and much toil resulted in two and a half miles only being recorded on the meter. It was possible to steer only a very rough course in the drift."

"On the morning of Jan. 7 Mertz's condition grew much worse and about midnight, Jan. 7 to 8, he passed away. My own condition was such as to hold out little hope, but I determined to push on to the last."

"Of the month that followed, which was consumed on the one hand by a close fight with starvation and on the other with a war upon miles that lay ahead, I do not wish to be reminded. It snowed and drifted almost every day. "As I crossed the crevassed glacier I fell in the length of the rope several times. I had miraculous escapes from these falls, as I was so weak I could scarcely climb out by the rope. My skin, hair and nails came off."

"Unexpectedly I found a food cache left by a search party, and reached the hut eventually. I am now well again. "The expedition has been most successful," he says in summing up results. "It was organized to complete the knowledge of the salient features of the Australian quadrant of the Antarctic region, and it operated in the great unknown expense to the west of the much-frequented Ross sea area."

Girl Puts Man's Hat on Box, Stranger Takes It.

Emmett Monahan of 448 Forest Park boulevard, told the police Thursday afternoon that his hat was stolen from the top of a mail box at Euclid and Laclede avenues. He said he was talking with a girl friend, whose name he did not mention, and that she jokingly snatched his black derby hat and placed it on the box.

While he was chasing her, he said, someone stole the hat.

TALOSOPHY NEW KINDNESS DEVISED BY THE REV. DR. LEE

He Forms "The Appreciation League" to "Boost" Those Who Do Good Things.

Dr. J. W. Lee, pastor of the St. John's M. E. Church South the Appreciation League in St. Louis. He outlined his plan in an address before the Y. M. C. A. Thursday.

In undertaking the organization of this league, Dr. Lee has done something which calls for appreciation and his boss should be told about it. This is the central idea of The Appreciation League. When you see any one doing anything praiseworthy, write a letter to his boss.

Dr. Lee has coined a name for this sort of practical kindness. He calls it TALOSOPHY. But in the old mythological days, before the free bridge was started, there was a young man named Talos, who was employed in the workshop of his uncle, Daedalus, famous mechanic and manufacturer of Pegasus wings. Someone wrote a letter to Talos' boss, but it didn't seem to help Talos much. The letter praised Talos as being a better workman than Daedalus. After reading this letter the envious Daedalus took Talos out behind the smokehouse and killed him.

But Dr. Lee did not have this Talos in mind when he selected "talosophy" as a name for the sort of practical kindness which he is trying to promote. He explained that the first three letters of the word represent the initials of The Appreciation League—T. A. L.

Some Cases in Point. If you are a league member, and a motorman kindly and smilingly respects the door and releases you after he has closed the door on your coat tails, you must write a letter to Capt. McCulloch, telling him what a charming man the motorman is. If the motorman fails to release your coat and you are dragged a block or so, you needn't write a letter to the Captain.

If the man who comes to turn off the water because you haven't paid your license takes off his hat and carefully cleans his shoes before entering the house, write a letter to Mayor Kiel, suggesting that his salary should be raised.

If the fireman apologizes for breaking your front window with an ax when the fire is next door, send a nice little letter of appreciation to Chief Swingle. And, above all, don't forget: If the Browns win a game, write a letter to Col. Hedges.

A Technical Error

By O. HENRY.

Watch this page Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week for good short stories by three other famous writers—Mary Roberts Rinehart, Montague Glass and George Ross-Johnson.

SAM DURKEE had a girl. Her name was Ella Baynes. They appeared to be devoted to each other, and to have perfect confidence in each other, as all couples do who are in love or aren't and haven't. She was tolerably pretty, with a heavy mass of brown hair that helped her along. He introduced her to her, which seemed not to lessen her preference for him; so I reasoned that they were surely soul-mates.

Miss Baynes lived in Kingsfisher, 20 miles from the ranch. Sam lived on a gallop between the two places.

One day there came to Kingsfisher a courageous young man, rather small, with smooth face and regular features. He made many inquiries about the business of the town, and especially of the inhabitants. Cognominally, he said, he was from Muskogee, and he looked it with his yellow shoes and crocheted four-in-hand. I met him once when I rode in for the mail. He said his name was Beverly Travers, which seemed rather improbable.

One day, when I was messenger for half a gross of cigarette papers and a couple of wagon tires, I saw the alleged Beverly Travers in a yellow-wheeled buggy with Ella Baynes, driving about town as ostentatiously as the black, waxy mud would permit. I knew that this information would bring no balm of Gilead to Sam's soul, so I refrained from including it in the news of the city that I retailed on my return. But on the next afternoon an elongated ex-cowboy of the name of Simmons, an old-time pal of Sam's, who kept a feed store in Kingsfisher, rode out to the ranch and rolled and bumped many cigarettes before he would talk. When he did make oration his words were these:

"Say, Sam, there's been a description of a galoot miscallin' himself Beverly Travers, impaling the atmosphere of Kingsfisher for the past two weeks. You know who he was? He was not otherwise than Ben Tatum, from the Creek Nation, son of old Gopher Tatum that your Uncle Newton shot last February. You know what he does this morning? He killed your brother Lester—shot him in the co'house yard."

I wondered if Sam had heard. He pulled a twig from a mesquite bush, chewed it gravely, and said:

"He did, did he? He killed Lester?"

"The same," said Simmons. "And he did more. He run away with your girl, the same as to say Miss Ella Baynes. I thought you might like to know, so I rode out to impart the information."

"I am much obliged, Jim," said Sam, taking the chewed twig from his mouth. "Yes, I'm glad you rode out. Yes, I'm right glad."

"Well, I'll be ridin' back, I reckon. That boy I left in the feedstore don't know how far oats. He shot Lester in the back."

"Shot him in the back?"

"Yes, while he was hitchin' his horse."

"I'm much obliged, Jim."

"I kind of thought you'd like to know as soon as you could."

Simmons rolled a cigarette and stabbed his pony with both heels. Twenty yards away he reined up and called back:

"You don't want no assistance, as you might say."

"Not any, thanks."

"I didn't think you would. Well, so long!"

Sam took out and opened a bone-handled pocketknife and scraped a dried piece of mud from his left boot. I thought at first he was going to swear a vendetta on the blade of it, or recite "The Gipsy's Curse." The few fellows I had ever seen or read about usually opened that way. This one seemed to be presented with a new treatment. Thus offered on the stage, it would have been hissed off and one of Belasco's thrilling melodramas demanded instead:

"I wonder," said Sam, with a profoundly thoughtful expression, "if the cook has any cold beans left over?"

He called Wally, the negro cook, and finding that he had none, ordered him to heat up the pot and make some strong coffee. Then we went into Sam's private room, where he slept and kept his armory, dogs, and the saddles of his favorite mounts. He took three or four six-shooters out of a bookcase and began to look them over, whistling "The Cowboy's Lament" abstractedly. After he had ordered the two best horses on ranch saddled and tied to the hitch-post.

In the feed business, in all sections of the country, I have observed one particular thing: there is a delicate etiquette belonging. You must always use the word or refer to the money in the presence of a feudist. It is a fault, reprehensible than committing a sin on the chin of your rich aunt. I found, later on, that there is another unwritten rule, but I think that belongs solely to the West.

It yet lacked two hours to supper time and in 30 minutes Sam and I were plunging deep into the reheated beans, hot coffee and cold beef.

"Nothing like a good meal before a long ride," said Sam, "and hearty."

I had a sudden suspicion.

"Why did you have two horses saddled?" I asked.

"One, two, one, two," said Sam. "You can count, can't you?"

His mathematics carried with it a momentary qualm and a lesson. I was hooked for the trail. I began to eat more beans.

In an hour we set forth at a steady gallop eastward. Our horses were Kentucky bred, straightened by the mesquite frame of the West. Ben Tatum's steeds may have been swifter, and he had a good lead but if he had heard the punctual thud of those trailers of ours born in the heart of feudland, he might have let that retribution creep up on the hoofbeats of his dapper nags.

Our first sight of them we had in the distance.

"What are you waiting for, Sam?"

Experiences of Gladness

By Marguerite Martyn.

Of course, being a member of the army of strap hangers is not Gladness' proudest privilege. She doesn't like the pushing and jamming. She doesn't like the contact with that mass of male humanity which is permitted to congregate upon the back platform and through which she must press her fastidious self before she can even obtain a foothold inside. And sometimes the half hour's bumping effort to remain upright upon her slender heels is about the last straw to a back that already thinks it has done its full duty at supporting her today.

Gladness had attained her most cherished seat on the sand box and she is picturing herself lounging back in the deep cushions of a luxurious limousine. The motorman has succeeded in reaching the ears of a truckman on ahead.

And, quicker than my mind could follow his argument, he whipped a Colt's automatic from under his left arm and pumped six bullets into the body that the brown dress covered—the brown dress with the lace collar and cuffs and the accordion-plated skirt.

The young person in the dark sack suit, from whose head and from whose life a woman's glory had been clipped, laid her head on her arms stretched upon the top of the car.

"He knows it, too. We all know. So, that's Mr. Ben Tatum! One of the 'prety men' I'll cut him out of the herd before they leave the hotel and regulate his account!"

After supper the flying pair disappeared quickly. Although Sam's lobby and stairway and halls half the night, in some mysterious way the fugitives eluded him; and in the morning the veiled lady in the brown dress with the accordion-plated skirt and the dapper young man with the close-clipped hair and the buckboard with the prancing nags were gone.

Five miles farther we came upon the future great Western city of Chandler. The horses of pursuers and pursued were staved and weary. There was one thing that offered danger to man and entertainment to beast: so the four of us met again in the dining room at the ringing of a bell so resonant and large that it had cracked the welkin long ago. The dining room was not as large as the one at Guthrie.

Just as we were eating apple pie—how Ben Davies and tragedy impinge upon each other—I noticed Sam looking with keen interest at our quarry where they were seated at a table across the room. The girl still wore the brown dress with lace collar and cuffs and the veil drawn down to her nose. The man bent over his plate, with his close-cropped head held low.

"There's a code," I heard Sam say, "either to me or to himself, 'that won't let you shoot a man in the company of a woman; but, by thunder, there ain't one to keep you from killing a woman in the company of a man!'"

My Dear Madam—I am 28 and in love with a young lady of 23, who lives in a nearby town. I call on her nearly every two weeks, as circumstances will not permit me to go oftener. She has a disposition which I cannot understand, though we have known each other for years. We are engaged, but she acts so cold and distant towards me. She says she loves me, but sends me when I call her a pet name in company. I treat her the best I know how. Her letters are few and far between. I sometimes think she is too busy to pay attention to my letters, since she has no mother and must attend to many duties, but still love, too, must be considered. I often asked her to set a date for the wedding, but she hesitates. This has been going on for over a year, but she gives no reasons. Could you please give me an expert advice as to what I ought to do? Thank you.

If in doubt as to her reasons for postponing the wedding and for failing to write regularly, why not ask her about it. A good frank talk often clears up many seeming puzzles.

The Baby Mermaid

By MARGUERITE MARTYN.

BERTHA was a little German girl who took her knitting and went down by the water. She found a nice flat rock and sat down to knit, but hardly was she seated when she heard a splashing in the water near and two large fish threw themselves on the shore.

"We have brought this little girl to see the baby," said the speaker fish. "We think she would be quite pretty."

"What you need is a cradle," said the other fish. "That is the very thing." Bertha told them: "babies like bright things."

"The baby mermaid opened her eyes and smiled. Bertha held her up over her head and shook her very gently, and the little thing laughed out loud with delight."

"Isn't she a dear?" said a mermaid. "Never knew they were so cunning before."

The fish came back with a large shell, and Bertha filled it with sea moss and put the baby in it; then the mermaids returned with the goldfish and they swam all around the cradle, making the baby clap her hands and laugh.

"I must be going," said Bertha, looking around for the fish who brought her down.

The fish shot through the water and she was at the top again.

Bertha picked up her knitting and walked slowly toward home, for she wanted her clothes to dry before she went into the house.

"I never thought I should be godmother to a mermaid," said Bertha, as she walked along, "but you never can tell what is going to happen."

Don'ts for Wives. By Sophie Irene Loeb.

ONDON—An English woman, Blanche Ebbutt, gives the following "Don'ts for Wives":

Don't say "I told you so" to your husband, however wrong he is. Don't keep your sweetest smiles and best manners for outsiders; let your husband have them first.

Don't be satisfied to let your husband work overtime to earn money for frocks for you. Manage with fewer frocks.

Don't expect to begin where your parents began. A little struggle in your early married life won't hurt you.

Don't grudge the trouble of keeping accounts. It is worth while knowing what becomes of your money.

Don't try too hard to regulate your husband's pleasures. The order was for $50.00 worth of staple groceries to be distributed among these families of the striking copper miners in the Calumet region.

Hints for the Home Dressmaker

Drawn for the Post-Dispatch By MARGUERITE MARTYN

If you desire the fashionable spring figure bear in mind when developing your spring frocks, that this must be large at the waist and narrow at the hips. There must be an enlargement at the hip-line and the bustle effects will bring you right up to date. The upper part of the body must display loose fitting effects in which the drooping shoulders are the style feature.

The desirable fullness at the hips is obtained by means of flouncings or deep puffs. If this is too extreme try the short, full tunic and, if you do not desire to cut up your material, a sash or bow of the same or contrasting fabric, draped at the back, will prove effectual, and then, of course, there are the bustle effects, which are the newest forms of the draperies.

A neat bustle effect is displayed in a French afternoon dress of champagne crepe. Above the short tunic of matching lace there is a low girle ending in neatly arranged loops extending to end of tunic and affording the new outstanding drapery known as the bustle effect.

Skirts continue short in length. Even the dance frocks are now made up without trains, an elimination bringing comfort to the followers of the present dance craze. Sleeves may be either long or short. The fashionable Parisienne is wearing long sleeves for street and general day wear, while at evening functions her gown is sleeveless. American women are wearing long or short sleeves as fancy dictates. The good dresser has adopted long sleeves for general wear and for dressy occasions permits inclination to ditate whether the costume is to have long or short sleeves. And she is having most of her summer frocks made with the comfortable three-quarter sleeve.

Collars are high at the back and low in front. They are often full at the back, and many dressmakers use wire to insure the proper flare. Of course to be fashionable they must stand away from the neck.

Vests, that give such a dainty touch to the costume, are a prominent feature of the new models, those of white crepe lisse and organza being favored.

Snail for Streets. In the city planning congress at Ghent there was much advocacy of streets so laid out as to allow the greatest possible amount of sunlight, in order to obtain the fullest microbicidal action of the rays.

BOARD VOTES FOR AMENDING CHARTER BY THE INITIATIVE

Freeholders Decide to Add Such a Section to the Proposed Draft.

The new city charter which is being written by the Board of Freeholders, if adopted, will be subject to amendment by the initiative provision which will be made a part of it.

This was agreed upon by the freeholders Thursday night, after they previously had gone on record as against the proposition. The subject was brought up by Selden P. Spencer, who has been working on the initiative, referendum and recall chapter.

He said Dr. William Preston Hill had presented an argument in favor of making the initiative apply to the city charter. Dr. Hill had convinced him, and the other members of the committee, he said, that the people ought to have the power to amend the charter.

The present charter can be amended only by amendments proposed and submitted by the Municipal Assembly. A three-fifths majority of the vote cast is necessary to pass a charter amendment.

Fears Changes Would Be Too Easy. Chairman McDonald said the objection to making the charter subject to amendment by the initiative was that it would be too easy to change the organic law of the city. This might cause a feeling of insecurity, he said. McDonald, however, said that if the people wished to amend their charter they certainly ought to have that power.

The freeholders who voted for the amendment proposed by Spencer were: Rosenfeld, Langenhorn, Hertenstein, Gardner, Rutledge, Spencer, Udell and McDonald. Freeholder Howe voted against it.

The freeholders had a spirited debate on the question of publicity in relation to matters brought up under the initiative, referendum and recall chapter. Some suggested that citizens interested in matters coming up under these provisions should have the right to make a written argument of not more than 100 words for or against any proposition. All written arguments are to be submitted to the City Counselor, who will "bottle them down" or condense them into a short statement, which shall be printed in the paper doing the city printing.

Freeholder Rowe objected to the publication of these arguments as advertising.

"We can always depend on the newspaper to print anything that is news," said Rowe. "The newspapers would all be glad to print the City Counselor's 'bottled down' statements."

"I know that the press will always print anything worth reading. The Post-Dispatch always prints my letters to the editor."

Equalization Session Fixed.

Louis P. Aloe, after many trials, succeeded in getting a provision into the proposed charter to require the Board of Equalization to remain in continuous session for six hours daily during the four weeks of its existence. Aloe said many citizens found it difficult to get a hearing before the Board of Equalization, and preferred to stand for unjust assessments rather than waste time trying to get them adjusted.

Rowe asked that Sundays be excepted. Other members declared that the statutes would cover that point.

"Let's put it in," persisted Rowe, "to show that this Board of Freeholders respects the Sabbath."

Freeholder Rutledge tried to get a resolution passed authorizing the publication of the tentative chapter on the efficiency system. The other members said the efficiency chapter had not been finally adopted, and was not ready for publication. They put it up to Rutledge to move the final adoption of the chapter, in connection with his motion to publish. Rutledge refused to make the motion, declaring he was opposed to it.

He and Freeholder Hertenstein have been holding out for a modified efficiency bureau, under which all applicants making a certain grade would be certified to heads of departments. The proposed chapter provides that only the three men highest on the lists shall be certified when vacancies are to be filled, and that heads of departments shall make their selections from these names.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur and alcohol added, then left to age and carefully filtered will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant; remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching, and falling hair.

Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, gray or dry, scraggly and thin. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," thus avoiding a lot of mess. Some druggists make their own, but it isn't nearly so nice as "Wyeth's."

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur no one can tell, because it does it so naturally; so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. Do this tonight and by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, after another application or two it will be restored to its natural color and be even more glossy, soft and luxuriant than ever. Local druggists say they are selling lots of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur"; it surely helps folks appear years younger.—ADY.

The Jarr Family
Written for the Post-Dispatch
By ROY L. MCCARDELL

It is Barely Possible Mrs. Jarr Will Try a Tinted Wig and Rainbow Eyebrow.

MRS. JARR came in and kissed the children all around with eager affection. Then she gave Mr. Jarr a good big hug and a few kisses for himself.

"My, my!" said Mr. Jarr. "We've gotten very popular with mother, haven't we?"

"If only those Cackleberry girls would go home and if only their mother would go home, so I wouldn't have to be running to stores with them or going to tango. I'd just like to get acquainted with my family once again!" Mrs. Jarr declared.

"Did you have a good time today, my dear?" asked Mr. Jarr. "Gertrude said you went downtown with Mrs. Stryver when I got home before you did."

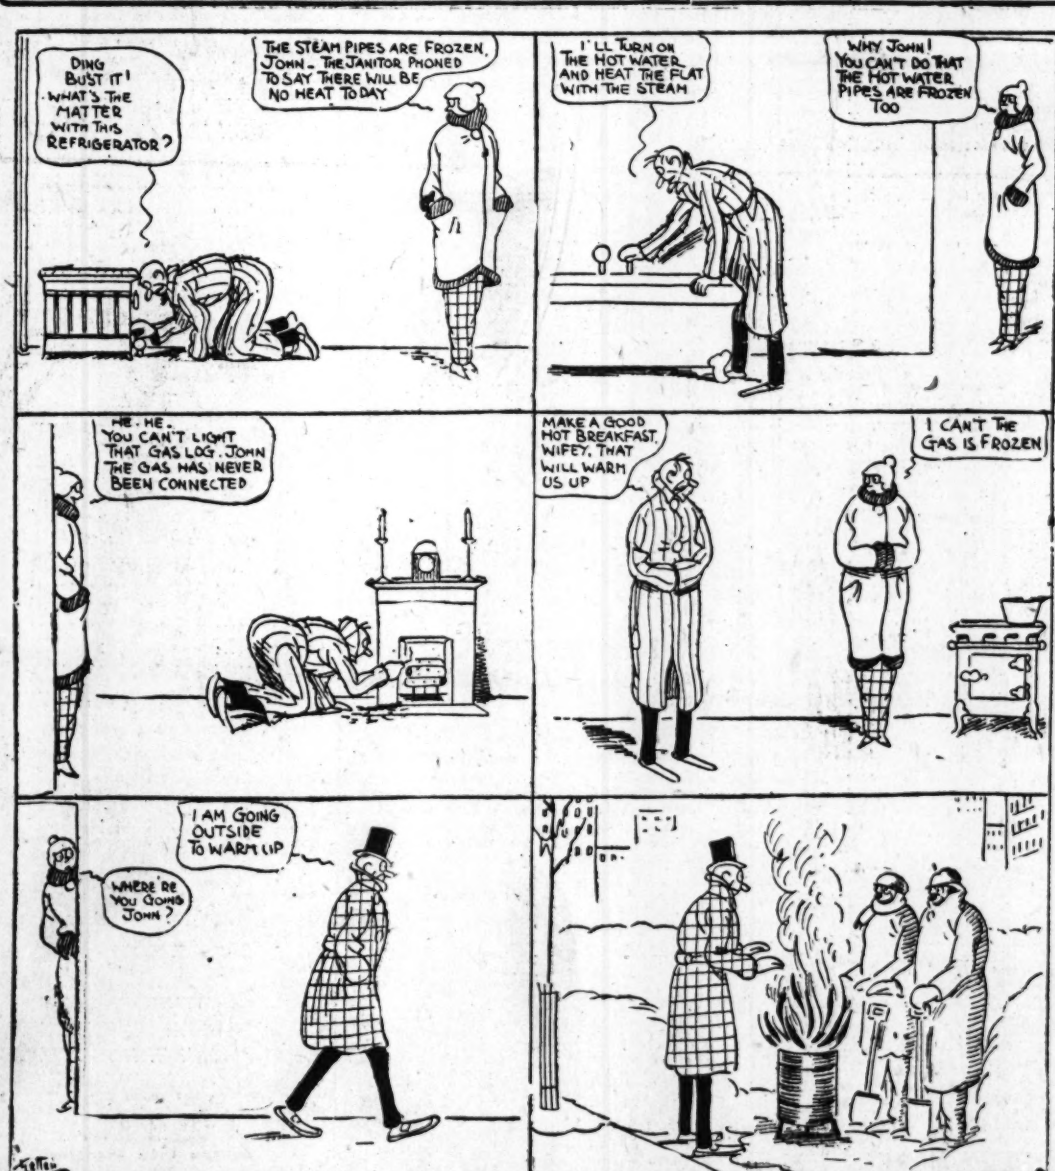

"Well, now don't go throwing that up to me!" retorted Mrs. Jarr. "It isn't often that happens, and only that I wanted to prevent a scandal, because Mrs. Stryver tried to make trouble between Clara Mudridge-Smith and her husband and between Mrs. Blodger and HER husband. But for her I wouldn't have gone downtown at all; you know how little I care for tango teas. And, by the way, dear, you MUST learn to dance. Everybody dances. Mr. Blodger dances beautifully. I know he is a wretch, but he dances beautifully. And old Mr. Smith is going to start taking lessons, even if he has to be wheeled on the floor in an invalid chair."

"But what was the impending scandal?" asked Mr. Jarr.

"Oh, there was nothing happened, after all," said Mrs. Jarr. "But really how

The Day's Good Stories

Cattish!
MOLLIE met Muriel at the matinee one afternoon. They embraced enthusiastically.

"Oh, dearie," cried Mollie, "I'm so glad to see you! I have scarcely been able to wait until I could see you, to congratulate you on your engagement to Harold! Why didn't you give me a hint as to what you expected?"

"Why," replied Muriel, "I—"

"Now, don't you dare tell me," went on Mollie, "that you concealed it from me intentionally!"

"Why, I didn't, certainly," said Muriel. "I really didn't expect it myself quite so soon, dear."

"He is such a charming fellow," continued Mollie. "Weren't you just surprised to death when he proposed to you, dearie?"

"Why, I can't say I was," replied Muriel. "Why should I have been?"

"Well," replied the dear friend, "everybody else was."—Lippincott's.

Classifying Him.
POP said the son, who had cad-dled one afternoon at one of the golf clubs, "is a man & pretty good golfer if he knocks the ball 125 yards."

"Just a novice, my son."

"Well, if he knocks a ball 175 yards, is he pretty good?"

"Yes, pretty good, son."

"Well, pop, what if he knocks the ball 200 yards?"

"Mighty good. He's mighty good if he can do that, my boy."

"Well, now, pop, what if he knocks it 225 yards?"

"He's awful, awful good, Tommy," replied pop, as he once more fastened his eyes on the story of the Indians' downfall.

"Well, pop, what if he knocked the ball 250 yards—what would he be then?"

"Probably a liar, son. Now you had better run up and kiss mamma and go to bed."—Indianapolis News.

Simple Enough.
DURING a lull in the conversation the young man who was calling made the announcement that he had failed to keep abreast of the scientific advance of the age.

"For instance," he said, "I don't know at all how the incandescent electric light which is now used so much is produced."

"Oh, it's very simple," said the up-to-date girl. "You just turn a button and the light appears."—Lippincott's Magazine.

Cause of Complaint.
FIRST MOTORIST (after very narrow shave): But why all this fuss? We haven't damaged you. You can't bring an action against us.

Second Motorist: I know I can't, sir. I know I can't. That's just my point—Punch.

Where Snow Goes.
"Where are the snows of yesterday?" exclaimed the man who quotes poetry.

"They're gone," replied the city official, sadly; "but I assure your disappearance is no fault of the Street-Cleaning Department."

Girl of the Period.
IN weather like this the poet fears she must feel cold in the clothes she wears.

But the critics of morals, in causing a stir, are kindly making it warm for her.

Economy?
"Don't you feel better since you quit smoking?"

"No, I'm bothered half to death trying to figure out what has become of all that money I was going to save."—Washington Star.
